

Press Release

Date: August 16th, 2019
FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Unip Consultants, Inc. is proud to announce a brand new unip.com. The site, which went live on July 2nd, provides information about Unip as a company, the services provided, and the clients they serve.

The new unip.com, is designed to assist visitors in learning about the history of Unip the background of the executive team, and the core capabilities of the company in order to make well-informed decisions about their Information Technology service needs. All services are laid out for easy navigation and quick identification of the services needed. Built with both traditional and mobile viewing in mind, the site features easy navigation on both PC's and tablets, allowing the user to access information on the go.

Sharad , President and Founder of Unip said, We are extremely excited and proud to launch our new website. We now have a consistent identity across everything that we do, enhancing our position as a small business in both the Commercial and Government sectors. This demonstrates our exemplary focus on business objectives that is at the heart of our client's needs.

Edmonds, Director of Sales and Marketing for Unip continues: "We have taken the time to make sure we delivered a website that perfectly reflects our new identity and provides an excellent experience for our clients and stakeholders. We wanted a website that makes it as easy as possible for partners to get information about Unip solutions, and our new site does that. The new website has an easy-to-use form submission in our career section, so potential candidates can quickly upload resumes and browse open opportunities. The rebranding of our visual identity and website allows us to further display the commitment to both our commercial and government clients to offer unique solutions aligned with their business objectives".
